KeyMapper allows you to assign multiple keyboard shortcuts to folders. Simply click on the folder name and assign your preferred shortcuts. You can also assign multiple shortcuts to a single folder. Each folder can be assigned a default shortcut which is displayed when you click the folder name in the KeyMapper window. You can also give the folder a shortcut of its own so you can access the folder faster. You can assign shortcuts to a whole set of folders. When you click on a folder name in the KeyMapper window, a list of all the folders you have assigned shortcuts to appears on the left. Simply click on the folder you want and it will appear in the KeyMapper window. To assign multiple shortcuts to a folder, simply click the folder name and assign the shortcut to each folder you want. Folders Free! KEYMACRO Author: LiveKey A US foreign-policy establishment on the left and right is opposing a bill that would enable Iran's government to directly sell its oil to China. Sens. Bob Corker (R-Tenn.) and Tom Udall (D-N.M.) have introduced legislation designed to end the United States's deep dependence on Middle Eastern oil by giving China a leg up in the Iranian market. The bill would also allow US refiners to sell more gasoline to the Chinese. On the left, where political parties are divided over issues like global warming, net neutrality, and immigration, support for the bill is limited. Three years ago, no one even knew who Corker was. But now, he's an influential Senate Republican. Yet not all the left's most prominent voices have come out in support of the bill. At an event in New York, where he sat down with Vox's Ezra Klein, Rep. Ro Khanna (D-Calif.) — who is now running for Senate in California — told Klein that Corker's bill is "distorted" and should be opposed. Left-wing advocacy groups like MoveOn, J Street, and the Center for American Progress have also spent a lot of time working on the Iran bill, but at least some of the anti-war left has endorsed it. At the People's House, it was harder to find an anti-war left figure who said he or she supported the bill. "It's a smart 2edc1e01e8
