Lesop Recorder is a lightweight and fairly approachable piece of software that was created to provide you with an easy method of capturing the images from your webcam to your computer, saving them for further work. GUI could use several improvements. The utility's interface is far from impressive, being apparent the fact that it still requires additional work, since not all of the text is fully visible. Nonetheless, it is straightforward and simple to handle, so you should not encounter much difficulty in working with it, as its features are quite evident. Effortlessly record images from your webcam or your screen Lesop Recorder offers three main functions, making them quite visible in the main window, in the shape of buttons for 'Camera', ‘Screen’ and ‘Audio’, allowing you to choose the one you need and get started. When capturing a video from your webcam, you can select the preferred resolution, framerate and decoder (with multiple available options). You can then press on the ‘Record’ button and select an output location and name, the default format being AVI, and let Lesop Recorder perform its task. The program is able to exclude the audio stream from the video capture, but it can also record only audio to WMV format. Similarly, Lesop Recorder supports capturing your desktop screen, which can prove quite handy for demonstration videos or other similar purposes. A handy webcam capturing instrument To sum it up, Lesop Recorder is a simple yet efficient application whose main purpose is to offer you an easy means of grabbing audio and video streams from a webcam, enabling you to create short movies with minimal effort.
