IDEA: How to generate Map with Non-default

serialization/deserialization class for given superclass? I have a class that extends JsonSerializer, so I want to autogenerate the serialization and deserialization methods for it. I don't want the generated serialization to use the default serializer, because that serializer uses the Json writing API, not the subclassed one. A: You can control the generated getPropertyNames() method by using the following option in IDE: Settings | Code Style | Java | Generate getters and setters The option setting is on by default, and you can override it manually for specific getters and setters. The default getPropertyNames() method is:

public static String getPropertyNames(Object instance, Object... args) { String className = instance.getClass().getName(); int propertyCount = propertyNames.length; StringBuilder propertyNameBuilder = new StringBuilder(); for (int i = 0; i < propertyCount; i++) { String propertyName = propertyNames[i]; propertyNameBuilder.append(className).append(".").append(pro pertyName); if (i < args.length) { propertyNameBuilder.append("(");
propertyNameBuilder.append(args[i]); propertyNameBuilder.append(")"); } } return propertyNameBuilder.toString(); }

So you just need to override it for the serialized property and change the parameter passing array to use the serialized property. Other properties (like getValue()) do not have
